Roar of fury

by Swapyppup7557

Category: How to Train Your Dragon
Genre: Adventure, Romance
Language: English
Status: In-Progress
Published: 2015-03-25 02:16:59
Updated: 2015-08-05 21:31:12
Packaged: 2016-04-27 07:56:50
Rating: T
Chapters: 11
Words: 9,870
Publisher: www.fanfiction.net
Summary: What happens when hiccup is actually a ninja working for a secret group of ninjas and he comes across a weird relic. What happens if Astrid is an assassin sent to find him? AU. Hiccup, Astrid, Snotlout, Fishleggs, Ruff, Tuff, Stoik, toothless (all oc) and my own character add in.

1. The relic

Disclaimer: I don't own any how to train your dragon characters or ideas. **

It was quiet. Too quiet. Hiccup looked slowly around. Springing out his retractable iron claws silently. He was a ninja of the deadly furies ninja team. An elite team of ninjas that work in the dead of the night. His mission, sneak into the treacherous camp and steal their prized possession. They keep it under close watch so he had to be absolutely careful. He threw his mask on and attached his cable to the roof and got ready to lower himself into the room.

He peered into the room and took a look around. Two guards lay slumped against the wall, asleep. The item lay on a stand directly below me. He took a good look at it. It was pure black. It almost looked scaly. Reaching down, Hiccup picked it up. On first contact it started to glow. Dumbfounded he stared at it. He didn't know exactly what it was or why the furies needed it but he took it anyway. Just as he took ahold of the roof there was a loud "crack" he stared down in shock. (Did I break it?) Just then a guard woke up. "Hey!you! stop right there!" Hiccup was doomed. He knew that they would send their most elite assassin after him.

First time writer. Get a lot of inspiration though but never put it down. Should I continue? Review plz.

2. Tree climbing

Disclaimer: I don't own any httyd characters or ideas. Review plz.

Hiccups POV

'They're after me! Oh Thor. What did I deserve to be hunted to death.' It was night. I had fled the treacherous camp about an hour ago. I bet Alvin will sent his most elite assassin after me. No doubt about it. I'm doomed. I slunk deep into the woods and silently climbed a tree. It was faster and quieter in the branches then in the leaf mould. The relic was in my bag. I hoped the crack wouldn't be noticed. 'The boss is going to fucken kill me.' Not daring to say a word out loud, I crept even closer to my destination. Just as I could make out the edge of the woods, a shiny metallic object buzzed by my ear.

3. Small duel

Disclaimer: I don't own httyd or any ideas from it. **

Hiccups POV

I froze. I slowly looked around. I saw a shadow crouched in the tree next to mine. My claws sprang out and I got ready for the attack. The shadow leapt out at me. A double bladed throwing axe flashed by my head. I ducked and sprang. I hit the enemy in the chest with my right foot and landed on the ground.

As I got a good look at my attacker, I noticed that the assassin was a girl about my age. "Who are you?" I said. I didn't take my attention of of her even for a second. She whipped out a sword and faced me. We circled around each other. Looking for an opening to attack. She chose not to answer.

I tripped and fell over a root and she sprang. I jumped up and blocked just in time. I held her off and then vaulted into a tree. As I sped away, ninja stars flew at me in almost every direction. One sliced open my arm and I cried out in pain. The blood started to seep into my clothes. I turned and backtracked. Seeing her directly underneath my branch, looking confused, I sprung down and landed on her shoulders. As my weight fell down on her she crumpled onto the floor. I grabbed a rope from my bag and tied her to the tree. I whipped off her face mask to reveal long blond locks, tied back into a braid, and flashing, bright, blue eyes. Just looking at her took my breath away. "What is your name?"

For everyone who reads this, it is my first story and I do it all on an app on my I pod called werdsmith

4. Part of the truth

Disclaimer: I do not own httyd or its characters. Sorry it took so long. I had major wrighters block.

Hiccups POV

She looked up at me. "I'll never tell you, you thief." I was shocked at the sudden burst. Her voice was full of hatred. She looked away and went silent. I thought of what to do. I was stumped. Then there was a loud crack. I took the object out of the bag. It was glowing purple and blue. Large cracks spiderwebbed the whole thing. I looked up to see Astrid's shocked eyes, starting down on the item. "It's true." She mumbled. I looked up at her. She was still staring. "What's true?" She looked up at me. "There was a prophecy. In the 20th season of winter, a hero will arise. The egg will crack with great power. The dragon will bond to the hero, and they will save us all." I stared at her. Was that hero me. The egg did crack after I touched it and it was the beginning of the winter. "I thought the egg would never break." She sighed. Then she looked up at me. "So this is an egg? An egg of a dragon at that. Wow. I never thought..." I looked down then at the egg. "What dragon is it exactly?"

5. Changing sides

Disclaimer: I do not own httyd or its characters. Trying to make longer chapters. Sorry about that.

Hiccups POV

"It is the egg of a night fury. The in holly offspring of lightning and death itself. But trained it can be a powerful alley." I looked surprised then said, "that's why the furies wanted it." She looked up at me and bowed her head. "Master." She kept her head down. "Master?" I said confused. She looked up at me. "The hero is you. You will be the greatest ninja of all time and have the help of the most powerful dragon at that. You are now my master. Command me as you will." I looked down at her in surprise. Then confused I asked, " if I untie you, do you promise not to harm me in any way?" She looked up at me. Her eyes showed truth in them. "I promise. If I fail that promise I will gladly allow you to kill me." I sighed and started to untie her. She stood up and looked straight into my eyes. I was tall yet she came up to about an inch from the top of my head. "So, what now master?" I looked over in the direction of the furies head quarters. It was about a mile off. If we brought them the egg they would use it to rule the world. But on the other hand, so would the treacherous leader, Alvin. "Number one, you can call me Hiccup and we are going to see some old friends of mine. We can't give the egg to either sides because they will use it to destroy one another so we will have to use it ourselves." We started walking through the forest. She looked beautiful in the moonlight. "You never told me your name." She looked over at me. "Sorry. It's Astrid." It was a beautiful name. "Why were you working for Alvin, Astrid?" She sighed. Her gaze drifted to the ground and her eyes clouded over. "When I was little, Alvin had wanted all of our money for taxes but we were almost broke and what we had my father had blown it off at some bar for a stupid bet. Alvin was furious. He killed my parents and forced me to join his army. I was trained as an assassin. I hated Alvin and I built up my skill on hoping to assassinate him one day. He never caught on and I became one of his most trusted assassins. Every person I killed in cold blood I felt sorry for and swore I would get revenge by killing Alvin. He sent me on many missions and here I am. Now I have the chance to get revenge." Her story was sad and pity hit me in a wave. I couldn't stop it. I took her hand. She looked over at me in shock. "I'm sorry." I simply managed. She stared into my eyes. Dark pools of blue reflected hatred and pain. We walked longer and finally reached the edge of the forest. There stood a small cabin. The most peaceful place in this world of war.

...

I woke up to the sun shining in onto my face. In the cot next to mine lay Astrid. The morning sun turning her hair to gold. I got up and headed down the stairs. I smelt the welcoming smell of eggs and bacon coming from the kitchen and I followed it to find a familiar face smiling at me.

6. The egg

Disclaimer: I do not own httyd or its characters. I only own Ash. **

Hiccups POV

"Hey Ash. Thanks for your help." His ash blonde hair captured the sun making it look brown. He was tall and well built. "So what exactly is going on bro?" I hadn't told him about the egg. "There's something I need to tell you and it is in total confidence. You can't tell anyone. The only other person who knows is Astrid and I'm hoping to keep it that way. Do you swear to keep it to yourself?" His smile disappeared. He looked serious. "I swear." I took a deep breath. "Have you ever heard about the legendary night fury?"

...â€¦...

We had left Ash's house at about noon. They would start to send other assassins after us since Astrid didn't report back. Ash was walking in front. He was determined to join us on our journey. We were headed to the emperors palace. Then we will present the dragon and try to create peace. It was getting dark and we had come across a clearing so we decided to spend the night there. We were in the middle of a meal of rice and bread when the egg made the loudest crack yet. I stood up and walked over to the egg. There was a small hole in the surface of the egg. I took out a knife and with the bottom of the hilt I started gently tapping the egg, trying to help the creature inside break out. The egg gradually broke apart and there sat a little dragon. It sneezed and looked up at me. It held my gaze for a little while before it started to put and crawl over to me. It curled up on my lap and I just sat there stroking it. When it was time to sleep, I offered first watch. After three hours I woke up Ash for his watch and carried the little dragon to my sleeping bag. As I lay wrapped in its warmth, the dragon came over and curled on my chest, enjoying the coziness. It was comforting for some reason and I soon drifted off

7. The name

Hey guys. Sorry it took so long. I had major writers block. I was on vacation with no internet for the past 17 days so I have many chapters to upload. I will be posting them every day till I get caught up. **

Disclaimer: do I have to say it again?

Chapter 7: the name

Hiccups POV

I woke up to the sound of the little dragon crying. "Hey bud. You hungry?" The little dragon started warbling and I took that as a yes.

I grabbed a whole bunch of kinds of food then faced the little fury. I showed him bread, fruit, veggies, and cheese. He took one look one look at the food and growled. These wouldn't do. I tried to feed him eel next. It was a long stripped eel. The dragon took one look at it and hissed. His nose crunched up in disgust and his eyes narrowed to slits. "Ok! Ok! You don't like eel. Me neither." I grabbed a fish and held it out. The dragon showed a little interest this time. As I neared him, he stretched out his neck and opened his mouth. Pink gums showed him to have no teeth. "Toothless? I could have sworn you had..." I was cut of as he grabbed the fish out of my hand, teeth flashing out a second before he grasped the fish.

I jumped back, scared that he took off my hand. I sighed. All my limbs were in tact. I must have yelped in fright for Astrid bolted up right and stared over at me. "What's wrong?!" I took a deep breath. "He startled me that's all." She took a moment to calm down before she asked, "what's the plan?"

Ash walked over as I found a stick and started drawing in the ground. "This is the treacherous camp. We must go south from it towards the mountains. That's where the palace is." I drew small peaks towards the right of the small T indicating the treacherous camp "The furies will be waiting for me towards the northern border." I drew a X at the northern end below the mountain. "I'll deliver them a fake egg to keep them from sending another innocent ninja to his death.

"You head to the south while I meet them. Follow the whipwing road till you see a house. It'll be around about here" I drew a small building on the side of the line meaning the road. "Someone is there that I know well. Stay there till I get back. For now we need to make a fake egg." Ash nodded while Astrid looked sceptical. "Won't they realize it's a fake? How will you get away from them afterwards?" I smiled "I have my escape planned but I will make it back." Before she could say anything else, I turned and walked over to the pieces of the shell.

Then I picked up toothless. "10 pounds." I murmured to myself. I picked up a rock. It was the size of my hand. " hmm." I put it into the biggest piece of egg. It was The right weight but too small to fit nicely. I grabbed a handful of leaves. "Perfect!" Astrid was just staring at me like I was insane but she didn't question me. I wrapped the rock with the leaves. As I set it gently into the shell again, she seemed to lean towards me. It was as though she took interest in what I was doing. She got up and grabbed more leaves. As she walked over to the tree, toothless crawled into my lap. He sniffed at the sticky sap on my hand from the newer leaves and curiously licked my hand. "Eww! Toothless!" I reached for a leaf to wipe off his slobber. As the leaf touched the spit, it stuck. I pulled hard before it came apart. An idea popped into my head. I grabbed two smaller pieces of the shell. "Toothless, lick the edge of the shell please." The dragon complied then I stuck the two interlocking pieces together. I held them there for a moment before letting go slowly with one hand. The shells stayed stuck together with no apparent reason that they were ever broken. I got toothless to lick all the pieces and soon I had a full egg. It looked like nothing had ever happened.

...

"Perfect!" I had done the impossible. Astrid gasped as she looked up. Ash came over. "We must part ways now. I'll meet you in a few days. Take care of toothless. When you get to the house give the owner this." I took out a piece of paper and charcoal and wrote a message.

Cami,

These people are friends. I must drop something off for my boss. We cannot tell you our mission. I will explain everything when I arrive. In the meantime, please take care of my friends. I will give them something that will symbolize the truth in this letter.

Thank you.

Hiccup

I folded the paper and handed it to Ash. Then I took off my bracelet. "She gave this to me when we were five at the berk cave. Tell her this and she will believe you. I can't tell you her name for her sake. Don't tell her anything except that I sent you and that toothless is a dragon. Don't give anything away if she try's to guess anything. If she asks tell her that I will explain everything when I meet you there. Take toothless with you. he likes fish. Stay in the trees but in sight of the road at all times." I bent down to look at toothless. "Stay with Ash and Astrid. Be good. I'll come back in a couple days. Bye bud."

I stood up nodded to my friends and grabbed my bag and started down the trail. "Hiccup! Wait!" I turned as Astrid grabbed me and kissed me. I stood there wide eyed in surprise. She broke off. "For good luck." Then she turned and ran towards Ash who stood there dumbfounded. Smiling, I turned and walked along the trail.

Hiccup and Astrid's first kiss! Review plz

8. Old friend

disclaimer: I hope you like it! **

Chapter 8: an old friend

Astrid's POV

FLASHBACK:

As he had walked away I felt something inside me break and I couldn't hold back. "Hiccup! Wait!" I ran up to him and grabbed his shoulders as he turned and kissed him. I felt his surprise. It turned softer as he kissed me back. I pulled away and ran, not wanting to ruin the memory.

END FLASHBACK

...â€¦.â€¦...

Ash still hadn't said a word. Toothless was asleep in my bag. We walked for hours. A small clearing opened up ahead. Ash stopped. "We'll stay her for the night." His first words. I set down my bag and sat on the ground. Toothless crawled out and sat on my lap, purring. I stroked him as I thought about Hiccup. 'How can I hate him one minute then love him the next?' She couldn't help but think of his goofy smile and green eyes that seemed mesmerizing. His dark auburn hair shining in the morning light. She would follow him to the end of the earth. God she loved him.

...

Hiccup's POV

'She had kissed me! She actually kissed me!' The thought of her quickens my heart. I hurry along the road so I can be with her once more. I will reach the northern border within a day. It is getting dark. The clear night sky shines down through the last hints of the sunset. Still I trudge on. Determination edging me on. A shooting star blazes across the dark sky and I wish on it. I wish to make it back to Astrid, to hold her close, but now I was miles away and still going on. My journey takes me to the northern outpost. I must wait there while they contact the leader of the furies, Stoik the vast.

...

I reach the outpost in the morning. I hadn't slept. I reach the door and ring the bell. "State your business!" A loud call shouts through the small hatch in the door. "Hiccup Horrendous Haddock here to complete a mission sir." The guard was silent for a moment. "You may enter." He said more quietly as the doors slid open. A servant rushed over too me. "Fishleggs here to serve you sir." I looked over at the chubby kid. He looked my age, but very nervous. "Can you get the boss? I need to give him something." Fish looked determined as he replied, "Sir, yes sir!" He ran off and I layer down on the couch in the lounge, drifting off to dreams about Astrid.

...

I was shaken awake by big hands. "Hiccup! Wake up!" I stood up to see Stoik starring down at me. "Did you get the egg?" Oh there's one more thing about himâ€¦ "Yes Father, I got the egg." I reached in my bag and took out the egg. 'Still good as new.' I handed it to him. "Good job son! Now we can win the war!" I nodded then I built up the courage to ask, "May I go to find some new recruits? Cami is a formable fighter and we'll need as many soldiers as we can get." He thought for a moment. "All right. You can go. If you get caught by Alvin's troops, I cannot spare someone to rescue you though so be careful." I tried to contain my excitement. "Thank you dad." Then I turned and ran out the door. 'I'm coming, Astrid!'

...

It was dark when I reached our old camping spot. I was exhausted. I laid out my sleeping bag and fell asleep as soon as my head hit the pillow. I awoke at dawn. Ready to get going. I packed up and grabbed a piece of bread for on the way.

{}

Ash's POV

Astrid and I walked down the trail towards Hiccup's, friends, house. I found myself thinking about the day before. Cold hearted tough Astrid had kissed the scrawny little Hiccup. Now she was babying the little dragon. Carrying it with her and petting it. Feeding it fish whenever it got hungry. 'She may be tough on the inside but that girl has a special warm heart that cannot be found anywhere else.'

...

Astrid's POV

Toothless was growing fast. He weighed over 30 pounds now and he was about the size of a Labrador retriever. He walks beside me. He hasn't tried to fly yet but it is only a matter of time before he does. Hiccup will be proud.

We will reach the house in about a day. I hope Hiccup isn't far behind. Ash doesn't say much. He's the strong silent type. All we can do is stay hidden and travel far to get to our destination.

...

Hiccup's POV

Something rustles off in the bush. Someone is following me. I round a corner and spring up a tree. The figure comes around the corner. It pauses confused. Then it steps onto the path. I spring down on it. "Agh! Please don't hurt me! I'll tell you anything! Anything!" Comes a frightened scream. It's Fishleggs. "Calm down! It's me." I get off of him and help him up. "What are you doing here?" Fish takes a breath. "Stoik sent me to make sure you don't get captured." I smiled. "Change of plan. You work for me now. My father is no longer your boss."

"But why do you need me?" I grinned. "I'll tell you when we finish our journey."

...

Astrid's POV

We walked through the trees all day. Then the trees just abruptly stopped. I peered into the small clearing. A small house lay in the middle of it. "We're here. Toothless stay here until we know it's safe." The small dragon seemed to nod before scrambling up the nearest tree. We stepped out into the grass.

We reached the door and knocked on it. Ash took out the note and the bracelet. The door opened a crack. "Who's there?" Astrid spoke up. "Hello we're friends of Hiccup Horrendous Haddock the third. Were wondering if a friend of his lives here." The door opened wide to show a tall girl about my age with wavy blonde hair. "I'm Camicazi, a friend of his. What do you want?" I took the note from Ash. " he told us to give this to you." She read the note. "He also gave us this." I handed her the bracelet. "You gave it to him when you were five at the berk cave."

She looked up. "Please come in." I hesitated. "Can we trust you?" Cami looked taken aback. "Of course!" I took a breath. "This is Hiccup's." Then I whistled. Toothless came bursting out of the trees and ran over to my side. Cami squealed quietly. "This is toothless. The only thing I can tell you is that he's a dragon." Cami looked at me. "Get him inside before someone comes down the road and spots him." We walked in, toothless at my side.

The living room was huge. "Sit down" Cami gestured to the leather couch. We sat down and she seemed to size us up. " so how did you meet Hiccup?" Her question sounded serious. "He's my third cousin." Ash replied. I was un easy. "What about you?" I decided to shorten the story a bit. "I met him during his last mission." Cami nodded, knowing I left something out. "Ok then. What are your names." I frowned but replied. "I'm Astrid. This is Ash." She nodded. "Where are you going?" That one I didn't know what to say. "It's classified. Hiccup told us that he wanted to explain everything." Cami didn't look surprised. "Fine. When is he coming?" I sighed. "Hopefully in about day or two."

...

Hiccup's POV

"We'll reach Cami's in about five hours." Fish was falling behind. "W-who's Cami?" He managed. "She's an old friend."

FLASHBACK:

"Cami, my leg hurts." The blonde was ahead as I fell behind. Tearing up from the pain of my twisted ankle. We were 5 and ran off into the woods for an adventure. There was only the hill ahead of us before we could reach the house. I then tripped and fell on my face. I didn't cry. I was about to though. "Oh Hiccup. Your such a klutz." She ran over to me and helped me up. Then she put my arm over her shoulder and helped me up the hill.

END FLASHBACK.

'I loved her then. But who do I love now? Astrid or Camicazi?

Who will Hiccup pick? Camicazi or Astrid? Check back tomorrow to find out!?

9. the choice

Disclaimer: I wish I owned these characters? at least I have Ash. **

Astrid's POV.

"He's here! Hiccups here!" I yelled from the window. Ash ran over but he stopped and frowned. "Who's that with him?" I opened the door to run out to Hiccup but someone pushed me aside. "Hiccup!" Cami came running and hugged Hiccup. "Hey Cami." You could tell it was awkward for him. "Guys, this is Fishleggs. He is now part of our team." Fish was shaking. "H-hi." He looked nervous.

"This is Astrid, Cami, and Ash. We will stay the night here and I'll explain everything to Cami and Fish. Then we'll head to the mountains." Everyone nodded. "Cami, Fishleggs, follow me." They went into the back room. "I'll get toothless down for Hiccup." Ash just nodded.

â€¢â€¢â€¢

of.

â€¢â€¢â€¢

with respect. "I will join your army Hiccup. So will these bozos. This is Ruff and Tuff." The twins did a high five before clonking their heads together. "Fine let's move."

â€¢â€¢â€¢

hands.

I slowly walked over to him and sat down next to him. He didn't seem to notice. "You ok?" He didn't look up as he answered. "I thought our friendship meant more to her. I thought she would understand." He looked utterly defeated. "She's just a jealous bitch. You don't need her." He looked up. "That's the thing. We do need her. She's a great fighter who is a valuable asset to our cause." I sighed. "I said you don't need her. I didn't say the group doesn't." He perked up a bit. "You're right." He stood up and offered his hand to pull me up. I reached up sand grabbed it. "What about you. Cami will most likely take it out on you." I smiled. "Don't worry about me." I kissed his cheek. "I can take care of myself."

â€¢â€¢â€¢

they were doing to stare at me on toothless's back. "Enemy camp towards the west. We must keep moving." Everyone started packing up. I took a look at toothless' tail. Something didn't seem right. "Astrid!" She came over. "I-I think they hurt toothless' tail." She looked at it. Her face went pale. "They ripped off the left tail flap. Without it he can't fly." I felt sick. "We'll find a way bud." I promised before walking over to my sleeping bag to pack it up.

When we were all ready to go I thought of our morning flight. "We must go that way." I pointed towards the southwest. No one argued as we headed off. Ash took the lead as I dazed off in thought. I then got an idea. 'If toothless only has half a tail, why not make him another half?'

â€¢â€¢â€¢

€¢â€¢â€¢â€¢â€¢â€¢â€¢â€¢â€¢â€¢â€¢â€¢â€¢

When I got to the bar everyone but Astrid had sat down. Cami called to me as I entered the bar. "Hey Hiccup! Can I have a word with you?!" She stood up and headed for the door. When we got out she stopped walking and looked at me. "I'm sorry I yelled at you." I was surprised. Cami never apologizes. I decided to apologize too. "I'm alsoâ€¦" I stopped as she grabbed me and kissed me. I tried to push away but she was always into fitness and she was really strong. Then Astrid came around the corner. Cami finally broke off. Astrid turned and ran. "Astrid!" I shot a glare at Cami before running after Astrid.

"Astrid wait! Let me explain!" I grabbed her hand and as she turned to pull away I saw that her face was already soaked with tears. "Explain what! That you rather be with that selfish bitch than with me! You told me you loved me! Not her! Now you think it's ok to just make out with her!" He didn't let go. "Astrid look at me. I had nothing to do with it. She asked me to come outside to talk. She apologized then two seconds later she's kissing me. I'm a wimp comparing to her. I'm sorry if I hurt you. I promise with all my heart that you are the one I love not her..."

â€¢â€¢â€¢â€¢â€¢â€¢â€¢â€¢â€¢â€¢â€¢â€¢

won't."

â€¢â€¢â€¢

stars were poisoned. Alvin just handed me my belt saying that he made an upgrade to it. Whatever you cleaned it with, Ash, must have kept it at bay but now..." I didn't realize Cami was there until she spoke up. "Wait! So you worked for Alvin? You tried to kill Hiccup?" I didn't answer her. A healer came bursting in. "What's the problem?" I took a breath. "He has been poisoned by a wound to the arm. I don't know what kind of poison. Probably nightshade. He's had it for days but the poison didn't act until now." My voice was starting to crack.

â€¢â€¢â€¢

â€¢â€¢â€¢

Her jaw dropped. "You are going to agree with her?! She was working for Alvin! What the hell are you thinking! It could be a trap for all we know!" I glared at her. "Are you kidding me?! Astrid had no choice! Alvin killed her parents! She is probably the one that hates him the most! I don't doubt her loyalty and neither should you!" Ash looked around and then spoke up. "I don't doubt her loyalty. I am the one person in this group who met her first aside from Hiccup and she is the most loyal person I know." Ash got up and walked away.

I followed Ash, Astrid right behind me. "Thanks bro. It means everything to us that Astrid gets her chance to be on the good side for once." He smiled. "No problem. It was all true anyway." I returned the smile then turned to Astrid.

"You're sure about the east path." She nodded. "It's safer but I'm not too sure about after we get out of the pass. If Alvin has caught news of our plot, he might send soldiers to the west and cut us off at the opening." I frowned at that. "I never thought of that. We will have to be battle ready, when we get to the end, for a fight."

â€¢â€¢â€¢

before jabbing the axe handle behind me, Hitting the guy behind me who was trying to sneak up on me.

As I dispatched every soldier who came near me, I heard a scream of agony. 'Ash!' I had to go help him. I fought my way across the bloody field until I saw Ash. He looked ready to give up as he tried to fight off his attacker. I slashed my axe across the soldier's back. He slouched to the ground, dead. "Ash! Are you ok?!" I shouted over the roaring yells of the battle. "Yeah! I'm ok! That devil slashed my eye! I think I lost it. Go help the others. I'll be ok." He yelled back to me.

I turned to the fight and saw that what few soldiers remained were starting to flee. I ran to Hiccup. A large warrior was closing in. I caught a glimpse of his face and anger came crashing down on me "Savage!" I ran at him, throwing my axe with the ferocity of Thor. He turned and caught the handle of my axe as it flew an inch from his head. He tossed it aside.

"Astrid, Astrid, Astrid." He tutted quietly. "Did you really think you could kill me by just throwing your little axe at me? You've gone soft. You're just a useless traitor who defied your leader." He took a step closer to me. "Tell me, what made you choose to follow this guy?" He took another step. "He's just a wimp with a big mouth." He was right in front of me now. He grabbed me by the chin. "You were sent to do one thing. Kill the boy. You failed. I have no choice now but to killâ€¦" he was cut off as I kneed him in the stomach. He grunted and let go of me, hugging his stomach. I rolled towards my axe, picked it up and sprang to Hiccups side. "I may have gotten soft but I found something stronger than hate, love, and nothing can destroy it.

Savage looked over at me, scowling. Then he got up and ran. "Toothless! After him!" But instead of moving, he made a weird whirring sound in his throat before letting out a bright purple-blue orb out of his mouth. It flew towards savage and smacked him right in the back. He fell onto his front, smoke coming out of his back. Savage was dead. "The dragon killed the general! Retreat!" As the last soldiers fled, toothless roared and shot some orbs into the sky, the blasts exploding into rings of purple flame. Hiccup looked over at me. "This changes everything."

Sorry for the cliffhanger. I will be posting pictures of the gang on Pinterest. I will post the link as soon as I get them up.

End
file.